Energy research center may shut down

by Sandra Pedicini
CENTRAL FLORIDA FUTURE

At a time when American soldiers may be risking their lives for oil, a UCF-funded center for researching alternative energy methods is in danger of being forced out of business.

UCF, requested by the state to formulate a proposed budget with $4 million worth of budget cuts, has recommended elimination of funding to the Florida Solar Energy Center (FSEC), a research facility that receives $3.5 million in state funding through UCF.

State institutions have been asked to submit proposed budgets to the state with 5 percent cuts in order to give the legislature ideas on balancing the budget.

UCF has been faced with some difficult choices about what to eliminate. The Board of Regents has stipulated that cuts must be elimination of entire programs, not across-the-board cuts.

If UCF hadn't recommended eliminating FSEC funding, UCF would have had to consider elimination of a college, Provost Dr. Richard Astro said.

FSEC, created by the Florida Legislature in 1975, researches various alternative energy sources and is required by Florida statute to certify and approve all solar energy equipment made or sold in the state.

The center employs a full-time staff of 100, 55 of whom receive salaries from state funds. FSEC also employs about 40 university student assistants each year.

The idea of cutting out funding to the center is unpleasant, Astro said. "But [it's] comparable to wiping out an institutional program... We can't do that."

Astro said FSEC gets other funding besides state monies.

"The Florida Solar Energy Center has a lot of support...," he said. "It does good work."

But officials at FSEC say such drastic state cuts

Council not required to discuss SG legislation

by Tom Kopacz
STAFF REPORTER

The student senate put an old issue to rest Thursday when it shot down a bill requiring the Judicial Council to meet once a month, shortly after confirming a new chief justice who promised to do just that.

The senate voted against the bill (23-09) requiring the council to meet once a month to discuss Student Government statutes, legislation and other matters deemed important by the chief justice.

The vote appears to be the last gasp of a nearly year-old issue about the Judicial Council's failure to discuss SG issues, as required by the Student Body Constitution.

Shortly before that vote, the senate unanimously confirmed Chief Justice Pat Fletcher. During questioning by the senate, he said he plans to have the council meet once a month.

"Hopefully, I will bring SG back to three branches instead of two," Fletcher said.

He said he will make sure all legislation is reviewed. He said in the 1 1/2 years he has been a justice, the Judicial Council has never reviewed legislation.

Fletcher also said he will schedule meetings twice a month. At one of those meetings, the council will discuss the legality of bills passed by the senate.

He also said if needed by the Dean of Students office, the council will discuss student disciplinary hearings at the same meeting. If the second date is not needed, it will be canceled.

The senate later voted against the bill, 21-10, after a debate on whether or not the bill is constitutional.

During the debate, student body Vice President Jason DiBona yielded

AASU to honor Martin Luther King

by Lynn Giles
CENTRAL FLORIDA FUTURE

UCF's African American Student Union expects at least 150 people to participate in Jan. 23 activities to honor the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

"Dr. King taught us that the color of your skin doesn't matter — it's you, your heart and your soul. It's so futile to argue over something like your racial origins," said Shana Mike, AASU director of administration.

According to Mike, the most important effect King had on American society was to create a greater tolerance for cultural diversity.

"He promoted furthering education about black people and their achievements," she said.

While Mike feels King did a lot to conquer the problem of racism in America, she said she feels it is still a matter of concern.

Mike was giving tours of the UCF campus to football recruits recently when a racial message was discovered in spray paint on Phi Beta Sigma's Freedom Circle. Someone had painted "KKK — Go back to Africa." Phi Beta Sigma is historically a black fraternity.

"It was disheartening and embarrassing," Mike said. "By this program on Wednesday, we hope to alleviate some of the racial tension and misconceptions in this area."

A re-enactment of King's famous march on Washington will begin Wednesday's activities.

The reason for holding the event on Wednesday rather than the official King holiday is because more student participation can be expected then, according to Reginald Edwards, coordinator of the event.

King's birthday was Jan. 15, which also was the day President Bush issued the ultimatum to Saddam Hussein.

"I thought it was shocking at first. I'm sure the President was aware that Jan. 15 was Dr. King's birthday, but he may not have been fully cognizant of the effect of his decision," Mike said. "The war had to take place, but it's a shame that he had to pick that date."

The march will start at 11:30 a.m. at the corner of Gemini Road and Centaurus Boulevard by Greek Park. It will pause behind the Administration Building, where participants will surround the reflecting pond.

Donna Anderson, AASU President, will deliver an introduction there. UCF's Gospel Choir will perform after the introduction. Dr. Richard Astro, UCF's provost, will then deliver King's "I Have a Dream" speech.

Astro also has written a memo to all professors encouraging them to excuse students from classes to allow them to participate in the activities.

Upon conclusion of Astro's speech, the march will continue to the Student Center Auditorium, where Dr. Lenworth Gunther, author and talk-show host, is scheduled to speak at noon.

Twenty-four and a half hours after U.S. and allied military forces attacked Iraq, the student senate unanimously approved a resolution supporting the action.

The resolution (23-02) says the senate, representing the UCF student body, states its support for President Bush, "...and his resolve against Saddam Hussein and the army of Iraq for their brutal aggression against the people and nation of Kuwait."

3 groups will march on campus to protest war

by Melissa Stoker
COPY EDITOR

Two area peace organizations and a proposed student organization against war in the Persian Gulf are planning three anti-war demonstrations Tuesday and Wednesday at UCF.

"Our country is rallying [for] the president simply because he is the president — they're not asking, 'Why?'" said Lance Turner, organizer of PeaceWorks, one of the three groups planning the protests. "What we're doing is we're asking, 'Why? Why must we kill to maintain the status quo when there are alternatives?'"

The groups plan to inform students, faculty and staff of the war status and gather support against the war at noon both days on the Green.

At 4 p.m. Tuesday, the group will meet behind the Administration Building and march in and around buildings at UCF.

"Every inch of campus we can march on, we're going to march on," Turner said. He said they will wave banners and signs that will say such things as "Support the troops, bring them home."

"We oppose the use of war for gaining a political goal," said Sam Rushing, a member of the proposed Students For a Rational Society. "It is not enough of an American crisis situation to sacrifice American lives — and Iraqi lives."

Rushing said though it's too late to prevent violence, it's not too late to pull U.S. troops out.

"I think a lot of people who supported [giving Bush war power] in Congress and in the United Nations thought giving Bush power would scare off Hussein — but that's obviously not what happened."

The group invited professors to speak at the noon demonstrations, but Turner said he expects more will come Wednesday because that protest was planned for more in advance.

On Thursday and Friday, the group distributed fliers that read "Stop The War" at the top and contained President Bush's phone number. Members of the Florida Coalition for Peace and Justice will be among the protesters.

Islamic students say war violates religion

GUPS opposes war; JSU member supports Bush

by Mary Watkins
STAFF REPORTER

The reality of war disturbs Moslem, Palestinian and Jewish student organizations on campus.

Islamic students said the war violates their religious beliefs.

"All we want is peace," said Muslim Student Association President Abdul Salah.

Salah said he does not support the American-allied forces or Saddam Hussein.

On national TV, Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein claimed God is with him and his troops. According to Salah, Hussein has not been governing according to Islamic Law, the religion of peace. One must never hurt innocent people, rape women or burn houses, Salah said.

"You cannot claim God is with you when you do such things," he said.

Jewish Student Union President Ana Bugdadi agrees.

"He [Hussein] should not insult the rest of the Arab world by calling the war a 'holy' war," Bugdadi said.

Salah said he is distressed because he feels the biggest loss of lives will come from the Moslem population. Also, this time of year, more than 2 million Moslems travel to the Kaba Shrine in Saudi Arabia for pilgrimage.

"We don't know what the outcome will be. We don't know what will be hit next," Salah said.

Like the Moslems, Palestinian students also oppose the war.

"We do not support aggression in any way, whether it be Saddam Hussein in Kuwait or Israel's illegal occupation of Palestine since 1967," a member of the General Union of Palestinian Students said.

A GUPS representative, who wished to remain anonymous, said aggression is not the Islamic way and that Hussein is a dictator giving Palestinians a sense of hope.

"We pray it will be over with the Soviet Union peace plan issued this morning," the representative said Friday.

Adam Smith, a Jewish Student Union member, said Jewish students are tense. However, he said he strongly supports Bush.

Smith said Hussein is a madman who needs to be stopped. He also said he feels Israel should retaliate against Hussein's attack despite discouragement from the United States.

"Israel should be commended on [its] power of restraint," Bugdadi said.

Staff members cannot call relatives in Marines in Gulf

by Melissa Stoker
COPY EDITOR

Three UCF staff members with family in the Middle East can rely only on news because they have no way to contact their relatives.

Debbie Gauntlett of the Foundation office has a husband in the U.S. Marines. He left Jan. 13 for Saudi Arabia.

She said her husband, 1st Sgt. Jeff Gauntlett, 39, is in the reserves and was not directly involved in the war as of Friday.

Though Gauntlett's husband called her through MacDill Air Force Base in Tampa Wednesday morning, she said she cannot call him.

Nonetheless, Gauntlett said she supports the war.

"I'm for going in there and getting the job done," she said. "I don't think anybody should be allowed to do that [what Hussein has done]. I wish they would have put the deadline... even earlier," she said.

Iris Salazar, office manager of the Budget Office, has a 20-year-old son, Raul Salazar, in the Communications Support Battalion in the Marines.

According to his mother, he is near the Iraqi-Saudi Arabian border, about 35 miles from Kuwait. Salazar said she has not heard from her son since Christmas Eve, and that he cannot call her.

- Trudy Prince

"I'm not against it [the war], but I'm not completely for it," Salazar said. "We could've waited it out. Sanctions [boycotting trade with Iraq], given enough time, could've worked."

She said her son is for the war. "He was ready to go. He wasn't worried at all."

Credit Union Manager Trudy Prince's son, Cpl. Roger Carter, 19, is a Marine.

Prince said her son is somewhere between Kuwait and Saudi Arabia, but she said he could not tell her exactly where. He left for the Mideast Dec. 29.

Prince said she likes the support people are showing for the war effort.

However, she said, "We never should have let it develop into a problem that was significant."

She said the United States should be less dependent on foreign countries for natural resources and nations should have more interest in promoting good will and helping one another.

"At this point..., we all just need to say special prayers for the people over there," she said.

chairmanship of the meeting to argue against the bill.

Although DiBona is not a member of the senate, he can yield the chair to the senate president pro tempore if he wishes to debate an issue. He cannot re-assume the chair until the issue is voted on or tabled.

The senate also discussed whether the vice president for Student Affairs had, in effect, removed the Judicial Council from SG.

Lee Tubbs vetoed a previous version of the bill (22-66) in September, after the previous senate had finished meeting.

In a memo explaining his veto, Tubbs said he had discussed the bill with the Dean of Students office, and that he thought the council should meet as required by that office.

"If we think about that for a second, it says the Judicial Council is no longer part of Student Government," said Sen. David Mann, who resubmitted the bill Jan. 10.

"He's basically saying the Dean of Students office can make them meet as often as they want, but Student Government can't," he said.

Student Affairs said Friday that Dr. Lee Tubbs' memo explaining the veto had been misinterpreted.

Tubbs said he used the Dean of Students' office as an example of the council's duties.

Tubbs said Friday he had been misinterpreted.

"My statement wasn't intended to be that limited," he said.

He said he did not think one branch should not have that kind of power over another branch.

"It doesn't exclude them from meeting at any other time on any other issue," he said.

Mann introduced the bill under the authority of Article IV of the Student Body Constitution, dealing with the Judicial Branch.

Section 4.B of that article says the council must adopt rules governing procedures, unless otherwise defined by statute.

"That, as far as I'm concerned, is the main issue," Mann said.

Opponents of the bill said it is unconstitutional because the Judicial Council is a separate branch of SG.

DiBona said he thinks the constitution is flawed and that it should be amended to remove the wording "unless otherwise defined by statute."

"I think that's putting restrictions on what many of us see as a separate but equal branch of government," Sen. David Groover said.

"If we set a precedent like this, it's going to come back to haunt us," Sen. David Patton said.

No one thought Tubbs' action was justified.

DiBona suggested passing a resolution disagreeing with Tubbs' actions.

supports U.S. military personnel in the Persian Gulf area and "...commend[s] them for their bravery and their sense of duty, honor and country."

A copy of the resolution, which was introduced in response to Bush's open letter to college students, will be mailed to the White House.

Although the resolution passed unanimously, it did not pass without debate.

"There are times when you must do what must be done," said Senate President Pro Tem David Carls, who introduced the resolution.

"Saddam Hussein sent very bright and beaming signals that he was going to invade Kuwait and we [the United States] didn't say anything," Sen. David Mann said.

He also objected to some of the wording of the resolution, which said the senate supports Bush's policies in the Gulf. The senate unanimously removed that line.

Mann also argued against the senate involving itself in a non-UCF issue.

Sen. Terrance Dunn also argued against the resolution.

"I look at it as taking lives for oil," he said.

Debate on the resolution ended when Sen. Meredith Miller said she had just been informed of the Iraqi missile attack on Tel Aviv and Haifa, Israel.

At that time, debate ceased, the resolution was passed and the senate adjourned.

would mean the end of the center.

"If we were to lose all our state funding, we probably would be put out of business," said Dr. David Block, director of FSEC.

While the center does receive funding from other areas such as the U.S. Department of Energy, it is in the form of contract funds — many of them matching funds, representative Ingrid Melody said.

The center would not appear as attractive without state monies to match those given by other agencies, which may go to other facilities with more adequate funding for research contracts.

"Without state funding, it would be almost impossible for us to get contract funds," Melody said.

She said for now, the center is continuing to operate in the hopes that the state legislature will continue funding for the center.

"I guess we're appealing to the governor to not accept the recommendation that our state funds be eliminated," she continued.

Dr. Carl Blackwell, vice chancellor for budgets and finance of the BOR, said the UCF decision was a matter of priorities.

He said while the center is important, the BOR must protect its budget, instruction and research.

"We've made it clear that all these activities are important and we continue to support them, but if a reduction fact has to be made, that's one that we would put on the list," he said.

"Over time, there were activities out there that had been added over and above the basic core of our budget... the debate was over priorities, and not the worth of the program, but the overall standing of the program," he said.

Blackwell emphasized the proposed cuts are only recommendations that will be considered by the legislature informing the state budget, which will go into effect July 1.

Melody would not speculate as to how long the center could survive after state budget cuts.

"We don't have a crystal ball," she said. "We can't see the future here any better than you can."

Other suggested UCF cuts include funding to the Atlantic Center for the Arts at Daytona and a subcontract with General Electric.

Mrs. Florida, Janet Hawes and her husband at last year's pageant.

by Sandra Pedicini

Life, contrary to the philosophy espoused by advocates of singlehood, doesn't end at the altar.

Just ask Janet Hawes, a recent UCF graduate who was honored for her accomplishments as a married woman at the Mrs. USA pageant last year.

Hawes, 31, was named Mrs. Florida in June and won, among a multitude of other prizes, a 10-day, all-expense-paid trip to the national contest held in November, where she then earned the title of fourth runner-up.

The Mrs. USA pageant, a spinoff of the Mrs. International Contest, recognizes married women for their accomplishments and focuses on family life, including contestants' husbands in virtually all aspects of the event, said state coordinator Judy McKeown.

Hawes' husband Kirk escorted her during the pageant, and he, along with their children, Nicholas, 10, and Christina, 8, has accompanied her to events such as interviews and parades.

The main focus of the event isn't on beauty, although, "We fully believe that you can be very attractive when you're older," McKeown said.

Contestants should look attractive because 50 percent of the judging consists of evening gown and aerobic sports wear.

Except for group productions at state and national levels, there were no talent performances.

"I think they feel if you're married, that's talent enough," Hawes said, laughing.

Half of the contest focuses on interview, with 25 percent for aerobic sports wear and 25 percent for the evening gown competition. The women answered career-oriented questions as well as questions on how they combined work and family and how community involvement helps a marriage.

Recent UCF graduate who began studying voice at age 11 now sings in Orlando clubs

by Terri Francis

Juanita-Marie Franklin is a new voice on the Orlando club scene. At 45, she's proof that it's never too late to begin again.

I met Franklin in a Park Avenue restaurant Thursday afternoon. I recognized her long dread locks immediately, even though she tied them back.

Talking to her, I got the feeling I was talking to someone very important. Simple movements such as raising her coffee cup to her lips are done with pure grace. She speaks in a low, melodious tone. She is easy to listen to.

I didn't know the first thing about Franklin, but like most people, she didn't seem to mind talking about herself. She directs most of our conversation toward the road in front of us. Our eyes rarely meet, but somehow I know she is speaking with complete honesty.

She grew up in a "sheltered home," she tells me. She never knew the "dark side of life." Ever since she left home, she's been "researching" this topic. I gather that she's finished her research and is now ready to live.

Franklin began studying voice at age 11. The years following were filled with church solos, school ensembles and summer workshops at Westminster Choir College.

After graduating from high school, Franklin attended college for a brief period of time. She says, "I wasn't a college dropout. I just discovered I could make a living singing." With that, she left for New York.

Franklin says she never had to work for any of the success she found. "People always treated me like I was special. Everyone tried to protect me from things," she says. "I had all kinds of opportunities but I took them all for granted." That attitude would be Franklin's downfall.

Franklin had innumerable opportunities to find fame not mentioned here. Says Franklin, "I always landed in good spots." She wasted women who have accomplished many things in their lives.

Hawes, who has included her family in community involvement such as work with Sunday school and the United Way, graduated cum laude from the College of Engineering with a bachelor's degree in electrical engineering in December 1989. She works as an electrical engineer at National Cash Register.

While in college, she served as president of Tau Beta Pi, the engineering honor society, and as secretary of the electrical engineering honor society Eta Kappa Nu.

She went straight into the Air Force out of high school and waited until after her children were older to attend college as a full-time student.

"Life wouldn't have been as exciting if I'd accomplished everything by the time I was 20," she said. Combining family and school was just a matter of knowing what's important, she said.

"You just have to set your priorities and do the most important things first," she said. "I just did the things first that I thought were most important."

Hawes had to undergo a lot of preparation for the contest, including working out and dieting to look good. Throughout the preparation, though, she had the support of her family.

Her family had mixed reaction to her involvement in the event, she said, because of all the time she had to commit to competing.

But they liked the part where the family got to do all the things together, she said.

"To be honest, it's been more like a family affair," said Kirk. "We've had a good time. It's been busy, but we enjoy it."

While admittedly disappointed she didn't go all the way to the top, Hawes said she knows she has accomplished a lot in her life. She said she feels the pageant helped her feel more self-confident and made it easier for her to speak in front of others, although "professionally, it probably hasn't done a lot."

Local Concert Scene

On Tuesday night, The Spin Men, along with Heart Attack Diner, will grace the stage as part of the first Tuesday Night Live concert of the Spring Semester. The show starts at 8 p.m. in the Student Center.

THE SPIN MEN:

The five members that created The Spin Men began to musically stomp in Orlando in the summer of 1987. The Men are:

Jeffrey Ridgeway, Percussion. He began playing at the age of 11 and now draws his aggression from life and love.

James "Jimmy Pepper" Johnson, Jr., Bass. The world of power and wealth captivates his mind and captures his soul.

Craig Wilson, Keyboards. Although he prefers to play the blues, he began with classical piano at the age of 6. He believes that the ultimate in happiness would be achieved if he could concentrate only on music.

Brian Atkinson, Guitars. Compared to the rest of the group, he is the last to discover his musical talent. He is the only member not majoring in music.

Eric "Ig" Norr, Lead Vocals. He was voted best vocalist for an alternative band from the "Jammy" awards. He has been performing in many capacities for the majority of his life.

HeartAttack Diner:

Another band from Orlando is Heart Attack Diner. The four member group includes Mark Hayes, drummer; Shawn Fernandez, guitarist/singer; Tom Holysz, saxophonist; and Rick Bailey, guitarist/singer.

The group was a past winner in the MTV Basement Tapes in Central Florida and Jam Magazine's 1989 Most Original Band.

them all. When she looks back she says, "I was such a lunatic."

Franklin has spent about the past 10 years living on the Hawaiian island of Maui. Here, due to unexplained reasons, Franklin began to care about herself and her music for the first time.

"Music is beginning to mean something to me," says Franklin. "I've realized that my talent has nothing to do with me. It's more than just what I can do. I'm starting over from the ground up."

She and her band perform

Friday nights at Dubsdread in Orlando. Franklin is also one of several performers featured in the Second Annual Zora Hurston Festival of the Arts. She will perform pieces inspired by Hurston's novel "Their Eyes Were Watching God."

"I would like to re-tell the story," says Franklin. "I want people to go out and get this book."

"Zora Hurston is my favorite author," says Franklin. "When I read her stuff, I want to write. She enriched my cultural, intellectual and spiritual understanding of myself."

Franklin will perform at 2 p.m. Jan. 26 at the festival.

Juanita Marie Franklin is one of Orlando's fresh new voices waiting to share her message with a willing public.

"Good Art, Bad Art, How Can You Tell?" is a gallery talk hosted by The Partners of the Cornell Fine Arts

Museum. The Partners recently were formed to promote understanding of the visual arts in support of the educational mission of the Museum.

Charter members, prospective members and their guests are invited to hear Dr. Arthur Blumenthal, director of the Cornell Museum, at 7 p.m. at the Cornell Museum on the Rollins College campus.

Jan. 25

Theatre Downtown's production of "The Undoing," by William Mastrosimone, begins today and runs through Feb. 23.

How can a deed be undone? William Mastrosimone, of "Extremities" and "The Woolgatherer" fame, answers this question in overtones reminiscent of Tennessee Williams.

Fast-moving, vibrant dialogue distinguishes this contemporary drama, which is set in the "killing room" of a poultry shop.

The play runs at 8 p.m. Thursday-Saturday evenings. Ticket price is $7 on Thursday $10 on Friday and Saturday. Tickets can be purchased through TicketMaster.

Jan. 26

Bok Tower Gardens' 1991 International Carillon Festival will feature European and American Carilloneurs playing a wide variety of musical selections.

Listeners have the opportunity to enjoy carillon recitals (including two moonlight recitals), special exhibits and garden walks.

Bok Tower Gardens is three miles north of Lake

Wales. The Gardens are open to the public from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. every day of the year. Call (813) 676-1408 for more information.

Jan. 26

The Mill in Winter Park will play host to "Beer Fest" beginning at 10 a.m. and going until close. The $5 admission covers free beer all day.

Jan. 27

The off-the-wall comedy, "Greater Tuna" will play the Bay Street Players' State Theatre in downtown Eustis.

The play runs Jan. 27 and 31-Feb. 2. The curtain goes up at 8 p.m., except for the performance on the 27th, in which case the curtailgoes up at 2:30. Admission is $7.

The Jaston Williams-Joe Sears-Ed Howard spoof of small-town life employs just two frenetic actors. They portray more than a dozen denizens of tiny Tuna, Texas — and a few of their pets. For more information, call (904) 357-7777.

Jan. 28

Central Floridians Against Censorship with the Enzian Theater are co-sponsoring "The Perfect Defense," an open forum with Lou Sirkin, defense attorney for the Mapplethorpe obscenity trial in Cincinnati, at 8 p.m.

Tickets are $7. In "The Perfect Defense," Lou Sirkin challenged and won against the sheriff, judge and prosecutor, who are major players in Cincinnati's conservative front.

Dreaming of united people, working for United States

"I have a dream." This historic phrase of Martin Luther King Jr. is a marker of the growing awareness that has developed toward treating all humans as equals.

Monday was a National Holiday. Banks, schools, and other businesses closed in honor of a man with a dream — a dream of people living, arguing, loving together without consideration of skin tone.

Martin Luther King did change America. People rallied behind him with a common goal in mind, peaceful equality. Americans all over came to believe his goals and his methods.

When he died, people didn't stop working for this goal. In fact, they were fueled to work harder.

Progress is still being made. It doesn't stop with the simple fact of black vs. white, but religion vs. religion and poor vs. rich.

The current complications in the Iraqi war are difficult to understand, but it comes down to the fact that the Moslem nations we are united with against Iraq hate Israel enough to say they will pull out if Israel retaliates.

It would seem that these Moslem nations would be supportive of Israel attacking Iraq after it had been bombed. It would seem that the common attack would pull the countries together with a common enemy.

The worst that could happen would be a few Israeli planes downed. It would seem that the Moslem countries would approve of that happening, but it appears they prefer the Iraqis to the Israelis.

It is sad that during this holiday commemorating peaceful coexistence the world is so filled with hate.

The hate of other peoples is bad enough in Russia that all of the republics wish to be separate of each other.

In fact, if the people were left to decide, the entire nation would divide into individual plots of land.

Americans sometimes forget there is hatred between peoples, and it is based on no logical reason. People bring up their children on hate and then they bring up their children and so on. Only through perseverance can we help to change people.

People reach a point where they hate their own lives so much, the only way they can feel better is to hate those less fortunate than yourself. (Less fortunate depending on standards.)

The United States has traveled a long road. This road has had a lot of burials along the way. It is not the time to forget what has happened. People have fought for the right to be express themselves.

Protesters are voicing their opinions about war, but they forget about the country we live in and the problems here today.

Please don't forget the world is still messed up and we need all the help we can get to get to a place where men and women, black and white, Jewish and Moslem, can live together in harmony.

If you have a need to protest, then go out and help the homeless here in America. Help the abused children or even help your neighbor. Only you can change your world, and now is the time to do it.

■ WHERE TO PARK?

Editor:

The beginning of the semester always brings UCF students a familiar problem-parking. More specifically the Parking and Traffic office.

I realize the Parking and Traffic Department is a vital part of our university. They are necessary to prevent a situation from getting out of hand, but... GIVE US A BREAK.

With the constant increases in enrollment and destruction of parking spaces, we need a place to park. At certain times in the day, there is quite literally nowhere to park. So we must all choose either to skip classes for the day, or find somewhere to park that doesn't block traffic and is not a handicap space.

The bottom line is, if there is nowhere to park, please show a little understanding and mercy for those of us who are trying to get an education.

Craig Markam

■ THOUGHT PROVOKING

Editor:

So many questions, so little time. Over the last five months the same questions have raged across the country over and over again. With the emergence of war, I have a few of my own.

Why do the "Peace Marches" in America resemble the "War Marches" in Iraq? Why is it that the only people in the entire world who blame President Bush for the breakdown of diplomatic initiative are the people in Iraq, some of the People in Jordan, the Palestinians, some Democrats in the Congress and the peace protestors?

Hmmm. Can anyone tell me how the "spontaneous peace movements" got enough money and organized so quickly? I mean, how were they able to mobilize and hold rallies in colleges and universities across the country within two weeks of American troops landing in Saudi Arabia?

How could they do something in two weeks, what took people during the 1960s to do? I don't know. And I am sure I don't have the answers, but maybe that is why I only got a C in my last philosophy class.

■ THE LAND OF THE FREE

Editor:

This is a plea—a plea to all of the students of UCF. Now that we are at war in the Middle East, we must think and act, not as Democrats, or as Republicans, or Independents; No matter how we feel about George Bush, or any of our politicians, now is not the time to act like a protestor - now is the time to act like an AMERICAN.

All sides have been presented and heard on the pro and cons of military action, and now that decisions have been made, and action has been taken, this time that we must reconcile our differences and stand together as a nation.

We must stand behind our leaders, but most importantly, stand behind the brave men and women who put their lives on the line so that we may sit at home and exercise our rights to protest.

One feeling I have is a feeling of overwhelming pride in our leaders and our men and women in the armed forces who proudly protect our interests and those of the entire world.

I would like to leave everyone with this thought by Francis Scott Key:

"Oh thus be it ever when free men shall stand
Between their loved homes and wars desolation;
Blessed with victory and peace

may the Heav'n-rescued land Praise the power that hath made and preserved us a nation.

Then conquer we must, when our cause, it is just,

And this be our motto: 'In God
our trust!'

And the Star-Spangled Banner
in triumph shall wave

O'er the land of the free and home of brave!"

David R. Carls

■ DONATIONS TO WUCF

Editor:

It's hard to believe that a monetary donation has detrained the direction of WUCF. Mark Johnson's mention of this "payola" was frightening, especially now that the university's grants are under public and media scrutiny.

The WUCF management is hypocritical in their oath to "serve the community". Only the rich donor is served while the community and students are left in the cold.

Why haven't there, been any changes? Give us some answers, Dr. Altman, or get WUCF off our campus. We don't want this mess representing our university.

James Geisler

■ HELPING TROOPS

Editor:

I am a UCF student who was called to active duty in Saudi Arabia. I do not wish to debate the merits of whether American troops should be here or not, as that is ultimately not my decision, but rather I am here because I made a commitment to be there when called.

I would like to give my sincere thanks to all those people who sent cards and gifts.

Time for citizens to support fellow Americans

As the events continue to roll in from the Persian Gulf, I sit here feeling a bit distant from the news. I feel almost ashamed to admit I've been more concerned with my homework, than I have Mr. Hussein and all his SCUD missiles. I have watched and listened to my fellow students these past weeks leading up to the conflict with some mixed feelings. I have seen the "resurrection" of the peace movement around the Orlando area, and watched flowery young men risk authority to pass on the message of peace.

It's all been inspirational, but I can't shake this weird feeling about our world. Do these young, idealistic peace activists think about what their lives would be like if they lived in Baghdad, or worse, Beirut? Open demonstrations are common in this part of the world, but hardly are any of them started spontaneously. They are all government planned and carried out, there is really no room for free thought in these parades.

The Iraqis will continue to dance in the street and taunt us no matter how many conclusion bombs we drop on them because Hussein will order them to. You see what the peace activist have lost sight of is the harsh existence these people have conditioned themselves to endure. The Iraqis, and for the most part all of the Middle East countries (including Israel), could care less about the United States. If some country ever over ran us and terrorized the survivors, you can be no one would march in the streets on our behalf.

The peace effort cares more about the people of the Middle East than they do about themselves...or us. That's a tough relationship to honor. In this region of the world friends become enemies overnight. I don't think that will ever change. The smart course of action should be to wash our hands of this entire region forever. After watching the news last week, I know that may never again be possible.

No one in this region can stand toe to toe with us, but they can continue to do the only thing they now how: terrorism. I expect some where, over foreign skies, a lot of American lives will be taken in the name of revenge.

CAMPUS COMMENTARY

Nick Conte

Then we'll all probably see images from some middle-eastern capital of people marching in the streets celebrating the cowardly crime, and all the time blaming the U.S. government for it.

I wonder why no one marched for the innocent victims of Pan Am flight 101? Or for the numerous hostages rotting inside Syria? The people of the Middle East deserve each other. Even after we kick Hussein's butt nothing will change dramatically. They'll continue to act like fools and idiots, and will continue to "clean up" after them. The only solution I can think of is to hang a big sign saying "For Sale" on the Middle East and hope some land hungry space alien will buy it up.

Transformer infiltrated by wandering wildlife

DAVE BARRY

Tribune Media Services

We have been very busy, here at the Institute of Exploding Things. We have received so many alarming explosion reports that our Electronic Computerized Data Base overflowed the Heineken box where we keep it and got scattered all over our office floor when our small auxiliary dog, Zippy, started digging in it.

Dogs will do that. They'll lie around and do absolutely nothing for five hours, then suddenly they'll receive an urgent radio message from the Dog Planet that says: "START DIGGING RIGHT NOW!" And they'll leap up and just tear into whatever surface they happen to be standing on, whether it's a nice oak floor or the Institute of Exploding Things Data Base. This is an important instinct that dogs have, dating back to millions of years ago, when, in order to survive, they had to act stupid.

Nevertheless, we can clearly see that the worldwide epidemic of exploding things has reached epidemic proportions. Consider the following London Daily Telegraph article, which was sent in by alert reader Ralph Gage. We are reprinting this article in its entirety:

"A wet T-shirt exploded in the hands of Miss Gail Salter, a beautician, as she hung it on her washing line in Hucknall, Notts. Firemen blamed a huge buildup of static electricity."

We certainly do not wish to be critical, but whoever wrote this article has the journalism instincts of Spam. A T-shirt explodes in a woman's hands, and the firemen of Hucknall, Notts, casually reveal that this was caused by, quote, "a huge build-up of static electricity," and we're supposed to let it go at THAT? If this article is true, millions of Americans are walking time bombs, especially our young people, who are known for wearing T-shirts and scuffing their feet on carpets, which is where static electricity comes from. One minute a young person could be full of life, listening to loud ugly music while you're trying to sleep, and the next minute, BLAM, the Hope for Tomorrow is snuffed out, along with $387 worth of "rap" CDs. So let's not worry about it.

© 1991 Tribune Media Services, Inc. All Rights Reserved

But we should definitely give some thought to our next item, which was sent in by an alert reader, Jonathan Ward. It's the instructions for a product called "Fly Sniper," which uses a chemical attractant to trap flies. Under the heading HELPFUL HINTS appears the following:

"NEVER seal dead flies in a closed container. Doing so may result in hazardous explosion."

We have read this Helpful Hint over and over, and do you know what has happened to us? We have been seized by an OVERPOWERING URGE TO SEAL DEAD FLIES IN A CLOSED CONTAINER. We can't help ourselves! At parties, we find ourselves asking people, "You got any dead flies you're not using? It's all we think about!"

But we should also be thinking about the alarming implications of our next item, a 1980 article from The Richmond Times-Dispatch, sent in by alert attorney H. Watkins Ellerson. This article, by Science Writer Beverly Orndorff, concerns a doctor who, being a doctor, was probing around in an intimate region of a male patient with two medical objects: a viewing device called a "sigmoidoscope," and an electrocautery device that, according to the article, "generates intense heat."

This proved to be unfortunate, because without warning the patient had an intestinal event that we will not name here, except to say that it is usually caused by being in a crowded elevator. In the doctors words, this is what happened next:

"I saw a blue flame... and, with a loud 'boom,' an explosion occurred, thrusting the patient forward. The sigmoidoscope was propelled back into my hand forcefully enough to push both my attendant and myself backwards."

The patient turned out OK, but we hope this serves as a reminder of the importance of exercising extreme caution whenever you are in a doctor's waiting room. It's too late to react when your doctor and his assistant come crashing through the wall, propelled by a high-speed sigmoidoscope. This is why the American Medical Association now recommends that all waiting-room patients take the simple precaution of lying on the floor and covering themselves with a six-inch protective layer of old issues of Fortune magazine, which are kept in all medical waiting rooms for that purpose.

Unfortunately we're almost out of space, so we can't discuss the many other alarming reports we've received, such as the one concerning the gasoline that leaked into a lake in Fort Collins, Colo., causing a rash of exploding barbecued fish; or the blackout that was caused in Thornton, Colo., when a squirrel got inside an electrical transformer and, according to The Rocky Mountain News, "exploded loud enough to be heard indoors a block away"; or the similar incident that occurred in Syracuse, N.Y., where a transformer detonated a raccoon. God alone knows what will happen when, inevitably, a transformer infiltrated by a cow.

The important thing right now is, DO NOT PANIC. Disregard the fact that at any moment, in any given area, you could be wiped off the face of the Earth by a hail of squirrel fragments. You must force yourself to remain clam. And no matter how great the temptation — believe us, we know what you are going through — you must NOT seal dead flies in a closed container. Mail them to us.

BULLDOGS

"Coach Loyd told us we were rushing the shot in the first half and that we should slow it down in the second half," Brown said. "We tried to do that and it payed off."

The Knights were close until the 16-minute mark of the second half, when they found themselves down 44-41.

That is when Roosevelt Powell scored eight consecutive points to lead a 14-2 spurt that pulled Louisiana Tech away for the rest of the way. Powell scored 17 points in the game.

The Knights (6-8, 1-3), who had been averaging five players in double figures in scoring, placed two players in double figures. Tommy Tormohlen chipped in 17 points coming off the bench.

"We need to have our scorers have good games to win games like this or we don't have a chance," Dean said.

Louisiana Tech has won more than 20 games each season for the past seven seasons and has played in a postseason tournament, either NCAA or NIT, each of those years.

The game was the Running Knights' second at home. They dropped their first American South Conference home game to the Arkansas State Indians, 82-76, Thursday night.

UCF surged back from a

Michael Pohl/CENTRAL FLORIDA FUTURE

Denny Hinson drives around a Louisiana Tech defender. Hinson struggled Saturday and scored six points below his average.

10-point deficit to cut the Indian lead to two in the final minutes. But senior guard Bobby Gross scored seven of his game-high 29 points in the final 53 seconds to beat the Running Knights.

Sinua Phillips and Anthony Haynes each chipped in 17 points. Ken Leeks added 15 points and eight rebounds.

Leeks went over the 1,000-point mark in the game and became the eighth player overall and the second in Division I to do so for UCF.

Running Notes: Leeks scored his 1,009th point against Arkansas State Thursday. He is the eighth player in UCF history to reach the 1,000-point plateau and the second UCF player to do it in Division I. Pat Crocklin was the first.

LADY KNIGHTS

After having a 12-11 lead at 6:36 into the first half, UCF fell victim to a 17-3 scoring streak by the Lady Techsters, which gave them a 28-15 lead. UCF never regained the lead.

Poor offensive ball movement, failure to gain a second chance on scoring with rebounds and the inability to fast break Louisiana Tech were all reasons Knight gave for the UCF loss.

Knight again credited Yolanda Rhodes for a fine performance. Rhodes scored 15 points and made 7-of-10 shots in the second half after missing all six shots she took in the first half.

"Yolanda was matched against Sheila Ethridge, a tough assignment," Knight said. "She did a nice job. Her defense was good in the second half."

Phillips led the Lady Knights with 24 points.

UCF continues its conference games with a pair of road games this week.

"Our road trip against the University of New Orleans and Southwestern Louisiana is a big trip," Knight said. "We can compete with them, and need to pick up these two games."

Michael Pohl/CENTRAL FLORIDA FUTURE

Tracy Stowe looks for an open teammate against Louisiana Tech. She made 6-of-7 shots in Thursday's win over Arkansas State.

45-10.5. Like several members of the UCF team, including Tanya Terrell and McLeod, Mahood has yet to be cleared for competition eligibility.

The UCF distance runners, recovering from the loss of key members after the cross-country season, met with some overwhelming competition in the mile.

Freshman Joe D'Abate, still working his way back to cross-country conditioning, finished in 4:44. The race was won with a time of 4:20.6.

In the women's 55-yard hurdles, McLeod, a UCF cheerleader and a former high-school state hurdle champion, commanded the race from the start and won in 8.6 seconds.

Teammate Tanya Terrell took third with 9.5.

McLeod returned in the 55-yard dash to take a close second in 6.3 seconds. The winning time was 6.2.

She also finished second in the 220-yard dash with a time of 27.7.

The team's next meet will be the Princeton Relays on Saturday in New Jersey.

Lady Knights win 1st ASC game, 83-64

Yolanda Rhodes' tough defense keys UCF's victory over Arkansas State

by Michele Dragonetti
CENTRAL FLORIDA FUTURE

The UCF Lady Knights registered their first American South Conference win with an 83-64 victory against Arkansas State Thursday night in the UCF gymnasium.

UCF was unable to follow up the victory against Louisiana Tech Saturday night and suffered an 88-54 loss on its home court.

UCF is 1-3 in the conference and 6-7 overall.

After entering the second half against Arkansas State 32-31, senior Tracey Stowe capped off a 16-6 run by the Lady Knights with a seven-foot jumper at 11:09.

In that streak, senior Tari Phillips accounted for seven points and Stowe four as the Lady Knights took a 47-38 lead.

Phillips again led the Lady Knights by scoring 31 points and grabbing 15 rebounds.

The Lady Knights never relinquished the lead, and at one point, they boasted a 20-point lead with 1:13 left in the game.

UCF's field-goal percentage was 50 percent, up from its season mark of 41.7 percent.

"We came together and did the job," UCF Coach Beverly Knight said. "Each player was an asset to [one another], and I'm happy to see that unity."

Junior Yolanda Rhodes, who made 6-of-16 shots and scored 14 points, was credited by Knight as being one of the keys to the win.

"Yolanda had the toughest defensive assignment on the court, and she rose to the occasion," Knight said.

Rhodes drew the assignment of guarding Arkansas State guard Sonja Tate, who is second in the conference in scoring with 21 points a game. Rhodes limited Tate to two points.

Stowe also played an important role in the victory. Accuracy was her strength as she made 6-of-7 field-goal shots.

"She took control at point guard, played smart and handled the ball well for us," Knight said. "This was her night. She shined."

"We're hoping that wins will lead to wins, and to stay at this level Saturday night against Louisiana Tech."

This hope was not realized, however, as the Lady Knights found the Lady Techsters too much to handle.

UCF can't handle Bulldogs inside

Running Knights fall short against Arkansas St.

by Glenn Carrasquillo
CENTRAL FLORIDA FUTURE

After a gritty performance in the first half, the UCF Running Knights found themselves in position to notch their second basketball upset in the American South Conference against Louisiana Tech.

But the Bulldogs flexed their muscles in the second half and wound up defeating UCF, 80-63, in front of 1,016 rowdy fans in the UCF gymnasium Saturday night.

"I think we played great in the first half," UCF Coach Joe Dean said. "But in the second half, we come out and throw the ball away and make careless mistakes and we lose. We can't do that if we want to compete in this conference."

Louisiana Tech's front line of center P.J. Brown and forwards Ronald Ellis and Anthony Dade caused much trouble for UCF with their tough inside play.

Brown, a 6-foot-11 junior, scored 15 points, grabbed 10 rebounds and blocked 2 shots, despite sitting out for a long stretch of the first half with three fouls.

Ellis and Dade each scored 18 points. Ellis made 9-of-10 shots from the field and Dade made 7-of-10.

"Inside defense was a big part of the game," Dean said. "Louisiana Tech has some big, great athletes, and we didn't have enough to stop them."

The Running Knights were led by junior center Ken Leeks, who played tough against Louisiana Tech by contributing team highs of 18 points, 10 rebounds and 2 blocks.

"I think Kenny played very well tonight," Dean said. "He missed a couple of shots, but overall he made some great moves in changing direction and reverse layup-type shots that we haven't seen from him yet."

The Running Knights went into halftime down 36-35 but couldn't keep up with the Bulldogs in the second half.

UCF shot 41.7 percent from the field, compared with 64 percent from the Bulldogs, in the final 20 minutes.

Louisiana Tech (11-6, 2-2), displayed some of the talent of the American South as they ran a precision half-court offense and patiently worked for each shot.

UCF wins 3 events in 1st meet

by Gregory Eyma
CENTRAL FLORIDA FUTURE

A small contingent of the UCF track and field team competed in the Brevard Community College Invitational Saturday at Winter Park's Showalter Field, and UCF picked up three first-place finishes.

Freshman Drumeco Lauriston won the long jump, Jason Mahood won the shot put and Shari McLeod won the 55-yard hurdles.

The meet consisted of competitors from Tampa College, the University of North Florida, Brevard Community College, Santa Fe Community College, Florida Community College and a number of open competitors. For UCF, the meet served to gauge early-season conditioning.

"So far, considering all of the runners we have lost over the year due to eligibility difficulties, I am pleased with what I saw today," UCF Coach Francisco Castro said.

UCF won the first event. Lauriston won the long jump with 22 feet-10.5 inches. Teammate Jan Fosso overcame a series of fouled jumps to take second with 21-6.7.

In the shot put event, UCF's Jason Mahood took first place by throwing the 16-pound shot
